Course Information:	Modern hair removal can probably be traced back to a French barber named Jean Jacques Perret. In 1762 he invented the first safety razor when he attached a metal guard to his razor blade to prevent the blade from cutting the skin. Almost a century later came another man who can be credited with creating the shaving industry that we know today. Waxing generally refers to the removal of hair from the body by a number of similar methods. While mainly associated with women, the practice is by men more frequently as well. Waxing is an effective method of removing large amounts of hair at one time. Warm wax is applied with a spatula in a thin film and removed with a paper or muslin strip. In these methods wax is warmed to allow it to be spread easily over the skin in the direction of hair growth. The hair becomes embedded in the wax, which cools and firms up grasping the hair. The wax is then quickly
